Projects

Big Fish, Little Fish (JavaScript, Canvas.js, HTML5, CSS3)   `   Live Site | Github
a pure Vanilla JavaScript single-player game

- Rendered accurate collision responses between objects according to proper physics principles.
- Initiated cursor control using correct keylistener and mathematical functions which correlate cursor x and y position to canvas dimension

Noise Cloud (JavaScript, React, Redux, Ruby, Rails, HTML5, CSS3, PostgreSQL)   Live Site | Github
a full-stack application inspired by SoundCloud

- Built CRUD functionalities identical to SoundCloud's streaming service using a Ruby on Rails backend and a JavaScript, React, and Redux frontend.
- Implemented backend user authentication to restrict site access using BCrypt's salting and hashing methods, ensuring password protection and information confidentiality.
- Developed backend associations in specific Rails models to store image and audio files automatically via Amazon AWS S3 cloud storage, easing server load and scaling.
- Produced a functional frontend which implements React components and functions that specify the applications activity based on local state changes similar to SoundCloud's interactive UX/UI

FightCultureSF.com (JavaScript, React Hooks, Next.js, HTML5, CSS3, Tailwind)   Live Site | Github
a freelance website for FightCultureLLC

- Cited 'useState' React hook with 'handleClick' function in the Navbar component to set a false state until clicked, making it mobile responsive.
- Incorporated Next.js server code with React components to render static HTML on the server for full server-side rendering, increasing site optimization.
